Title IX Amendments giving educational opportunities to women and girls would be irreparably compromised if “sex” is changed to “sexual orientation.” Sexual orientation and gender identity should not be afforded the same status as protected classes of immutable and inborn characteristics such as race, age, sex, and national origin.

Changing commonsense protections now in place with regard to sex erases privacy and security for women and girls. They would also experience no fairness in athletic competitions if intrinsic physical distinctions are ignored in deference to biological males identifying as females.

Our Declaration of Independence states that all men are created equal. All ideologies are not.

The Department of Education should reject implementing radical gender ideologies nationwide.
