Good Afternoon,
Thank you for taking the time to read my email. I have 2 points.

1) Title IX mentions the word sex. That is defined as a biological male or female. Someone who identifies differently or undergoes a transition procedure can't change the fact that a man can't carry a baby and a woman can't produce sperm cells.

2) I work in the insurance industry and for employment practice liability policies and claims, there is something called the ministerial exception. Would not something similar apply in this case?

Thank you again and have a good day,
