Hi,

I am a practicing family physician. I am confronted daily with the realities of biological sex. Sex is almost always correctly observed at birth and it is immutable. Biological sex is a key risk factor or protective factor for countless medical conditions.

I am also a mother of a teen female athlete. I am seriously concerned that the Biden administration wants to permit boys who identity as girls to participate in girls' sports. After the onset of puberty, boys will generally have a physical advantage over girls. Most men are bigger, stronger, and faster than most women. How will the rights of biological females be protected going forward?

Sincerely,

Sarah Kaldestad, M.D.
